

WHITE GOODS

By FANNIE HURST

Sadie Barnett, a salesgirl in the white goods department, lives with her aunt, Dee Dee, who is also a saleswoman at the ribbon counter. Dee Dee, who is threatened with blindness, scolds her for her selfishness in accepting favors and entertainment with Jerry Beck, whom Dee Dee considers unscrupulous. Sadie leaves her in temper and goes for a ride in Jerry's car.

"No-no." "The old hag ain't been making it hot for you, has she?" "Oh, she—"

MR. JEROME BECK settled back in the roomy embrasure of the seat and exhaled loudly, his shoulder and shoe touching hers. She settled herself out of their range. "Now, now, snuggle up a little, Peachy."

"You're just a little better." "That's better." "Amn't it a swell night?" "Now we're cozy—"

They were nosing through a snarl of traffic and over streets wet and slimy with thaw. Men with overcoats flung over their arms side-stepped the snout of the car. Deacons and candy shops stood wide open. Children shriiled in the grim shadows of thousand-tenant tenement houses.

"Well, Peachy, how are you? Peachy is just the name for you, eh? 'Cause I'd like to take a bite right out of you—eh, Peachy? How are you?" "Fine and—dandy."

"Look at me, I say, you pretty little peach, with them devilish black eyes o' yours, and them lips that's got cherry on 'em."

"Lemme kidnap you tonight and give the old hag the surprise of her life when she wakes up and finds you stolen. I'm some little kidnaper when it comes to kidnapping, I am, kiddo. Say, wouldn't I like to take you riding all wrapped up in a fur coat with nothing but your cute little face sticking out?"

"You know what I'd do if I thought you'd been crying? I'd just kiss them tears right away."

"You're just fooling me." "Fooling? Lemme prove it tonight. Lemme kidnap you this very night."

"Is that what you mean by—by kidnapping?" "Sure. There ain't nothing I'd rather do. Are you on, Peaches? A sensible little girl like you knows which side her bread is buttered on. There ain't nothing I want more than to see you all bundled up in a fur coat with—"

"You— What kind of a girl do you think I am? Take me home—take me— What kind of a girl do you think I am?"

He leaned toward her with a quick readjustment of tone. "Just what I said, Peachy. What I meant was I'd marry you tonight if we could get a license. I'd just kidnap you tonight if—"

"Sure I did, Peachy. Say, with a little girl of my own, I ain't one of them guys that you think I am. Ain't you ashamed of yourself, Peachy—now ain't you?"

The color flowed back into her face and her lips parted. "Jerry—"

"Only a girl like me's got to be careful that was all I meant, Jerry."
